

This is the first paragraph. It contains multiple lines of text that should be detected as a single paragraph. The lines are closely spaced and left-aligned.

This second paragraph is indented and separated by some vertical space. It should be detected as a separate paragraph from the first one.

This third paragraph has different alignment and should also be detected separately.

Fourth paragraph with larger font size.
Font size changes can affect paragraph detection.

Final paragraph uses bold font and different color.
These formatting differences help test robustness.
